The Devil In The Kitchen (strathspey) on The Session

In any case, Devil in the Kitchen runs right up there with those bands at the top of the independent metal ladder. With the talent, energy, and drive shown on this simple demo, Devil in the Kitchen is poised to take the metal world by storm. Andy has promised me that an official recording, on its way, is going to put this demo to shame.

The Dish: Devil's Kitchen | KREX

The third song, Devil in the Kitchen, starts off with a midtempo riff over which is played a blazing fiddle solo (heh, "blazing fiddle solo" is a constant through the experience), and then there's a guitar break, at which point there is vicious thrash, and the peasants rejoice, and then the whole thing picks up to become a speed metal monster ...

"Devil in the Kitchen" was composed (according to J. Scott Skinner) as a pipe tune by William Ross, the Queen's Piper. The melody was arranged (and popularized) by J. Scott Skinner (1843-1927) and appears as a two-part tune in his Harp and Claymore collection (1904). Skinner later expanded the melody to four parts (variations) in his Scottish Violinist; in Harp and Claymore he directs that the ...
