We need to move on to another kind of literature. We could spend a lot more time on some of the 37 Parables, but we're not going to do that. What we're going to do now is move on to Paul's letters and rhetoric. But, in order to get there, we need a little tune-up on the context of Paul. Here's Paul, early images, later images of Paul.

Tobin reminds us that Paul's letter to the Romans has a context and an argument, and is more than a one-sided conversation. There is a rhetorical context--how Paul crafts his argument; and, a social context--how we are to hear Paul's argument within a real life environment (i.e., Rome, the church community of Paul's day).
